Education Chairman Resigns Staff Post

Dr. Willard Fox, chairman of the department of education, has resigned his position, effective June, 1965, Dr. William E. Harrington, dean of the College of Education announced Tuesday.

Dr. Fox is resigning to devote full time to his teaching duties. No successor has been named.

DR. WILLARD FOX

Dr. Fox joined the department of education in 1959 as an assistant professor and was promoted to associate professor in 1961. He was appointed chairman of the education department in 1962. In addition to his teaching duties, he assumed the directorship of the Office of Field Service in April, 1960. The office provides consultation services to northwest Ohio school districts in areas of school administration.

Dr. Fox has a bachelor's degree from southeast Missouri State College, a master's degree from the University of Wyoming, and a doctorate from Wayne State University.

He is a member of the National Education Association, the American Association of School Administrators, and the National School Public Relations Association. He has conducted numerous surveys of Ohio school districts, and his findings have been published in several professional publications.

PTP Sponsors PhotoContest

Photography enthusiasts here at the University can enter the first annual People-to-People photography contest, "International friendship in Action," it was announced recently.

Open only to students in colleges and universities having People-to-People chapters, the competition closes Dec. 15, according to Ronald Reimer, chapter chairman at the University.

Entries will be judged by three professional photojournalists on the basis of print quality, ingenuity, emotional content, photographic excellence, and agreement with contest theme. Picture content is not limited to People-to-People chapter activity.

Prize-winning photos will become part of a traveling exhibit to be displayed in student unions, libraries, and other places.

Rule sheets and entry forms may be obtained from Ron Reimer, Phi Kappa Psi house, or from members of People-to-People.

SAM Receives Award

The Falconeer, the monthly publication of the Society for the Advancement of Management at the University received a second place rating in national competition for the 1963-64 school year.

Editor of last year's award-winning Falconeer was Lawrence Leemaster. Clark Fitzgibbons will edit the 1964-65 publication.

Scholarship Motion Fails By 1; Dr. Shuck Addresses Council

The Interfraternity Council voted down a motion Monday evening that would have changed the scholarship standard for placing Fraternities on academic probation.

The motion, made by Howard Aldrich, stated: "That the standard for putting fraternities on probation be set either at the all non-Greek men's average, or at 2.25, or whichever is higher."

The present standard is set at the all-men's average. "We are thus being compared with ourselves because one quarter of the all men's average is Greek," said Aldrich.

Although the motion received a majority of 11-6, a two-thirds vote or 12 ayes, was required and the motion failed.

In a second attempt to pass the bill, delegates were summoned from Zeta Beta Tau because they were absent when the original voting took place.

A question of parliamentary procedure was raised saying that such a motion must wait till another meeting to be voted on again. A majority vote of Council waived the question of parliamentary procedure. However, the motion lost ground and received a majority of only 10 to 7.

University Fumbles Oversized Football

How could anyone lose a football 20 feet long and eight feet high?

It's happened.

The huge football that the University players run through before each game is missing, David Larson, chairman of the Spirit and Traditions Board, has reported.

Maintenance workers could not find it after looking all last Friday.

"I would think that it would be impossible for something of that size to be lost but all indications point to that fact," Larson said. "I can't imagine what use anyone would have for such an object unless he were starting his own Spirit and Traditions Board."

He requested that anyone knowing the whereabouts of the missing football contact him at the Alpha Tau Omega house, or Richard J. Towner, coordinator of student activities, at the Student Activities Office.

Top Grade Percentages Announced By Registrar

Registrar Glenn Van Wormer has announced a list of point averages which will be used as dividing lines for the upper 20 per cent and upper 35 per cent of the classes and the University's three colleges. These averages are based on the second semester of 1963-64.

Is It Ferrante Or Teicher?

IN THEIR THIRD performance in the ballroom in less than two years, Ferrante and Teicher again performed before a capacity audience last night. They played selections from the musicals "Carmen," "My Fair Lady," "Breakfast at Tiffany's," and others.

Press Club Set For Elections

The ballroom will be transformed into an information center with a party atmosphere from 8 to 11 p.m. Tuesday, when the Press Club sponsors an all-campus election party.

"You will be able to get the elections returns as fast, if not faster, than you would if you were at home watching them on television," said John F. Love, president of the Press Club.

Telephones, televisions and the United Press International (UPI) teletypes will be used to keep up with the latest election results.

Members of the Press Club will be standing by the phones, ready to take calls from both University and city residents, according to Love.

Two televisions will be used. One for each of the Toledo stations. The televisions will be placed at both ends of the ballroom, Love said.

Late election tallies from UPI will be announced over the public address system as soon as they come in, he said. The bulletins also will be tacked on a board.

County, state, and national results will be tabulated on blackboards, which will also indicate the way the county is going in the state and national elections.

The center will be kept informed of local results by runners from the local board of elections.

"Tables will be set up in the middle of the ballroom where people can sit down, relax, enjoy their refreshments that will be

Close Examination Of Agents Urged

All University groups wishing to contract talent to appear at their functions should check with Richard A. Lenhart, program director of the Union.

Richard J. Towner, coordinator of student activities, issued the warning in light of a recent incident in which university groups were swindled out of a sizeable amount of money in an unsuccessful bid for the "Four Seasons."

"Most agents are both reliable and honest, but a minority are not," Mr. Towner said. "Therefore, every organization should check with Mr. Lenhart before making any contractual arrangements with agents. He is in a position to recommend reliable agencies and advise organizations in the conduct of business with these agencies."

New Members Initiated By Air ROTC Auxiliary

Angel Flight, coed auxiliary of the Minuteman Squadron of Arnold Air Society, initiated the following pledges into active membership last week: Barbara G. Boal, Barbara J. Bobo, Sandra Calvert, Earleen Dennis, Judith Ellis, Sunya Graham, Paula Griffin, Cheryl Myers, Susan Powers, Cynthia Robinson, Irene Saemann, Delores Schroeder, Gretchen Stuhlmiller, Patricia Thompson, and Mary Zothner.

The ceremony was held in the Carnation Room in the presence of Lt. Col. Warren E. Peters, Maj. Louis I. Lawrence, Capt. Henry W. Rejent, Capt. Feston T. Smith, and Capt. Joseph F. Bohren, advisor of the Angel Flight. Escorts were provided by the Arnold Air Society.

Student Honor Pledge Dismissed By Council

The proposed academic honesty pledge tabled at the Oct. 15 meeting of Student Council was defeated in a roll-call vote last night 14 to 6 in Council's first meeting in Harshman Quadrangle.

Council members had conducted a survey to learn student feeling on the pledge, which would have been printed on the front cover of all test booklets known as "blue books." The pledge would have read, "As a student of Bowling Green State University, I hereby pledge that I will not cheat on the examination I am about to take."

Reasons opposing the proposal varied. Some students believed that few examinees would be affected by the pledge. Others said that cheating depends on individual attitude. Many of these polled objected to the negative wording of the pledge and said they would have favored a more positive statement.

Students polled who said they did not cheat, believed a stigma would be attached for those who refused to sign.

Council members opposing the proposed pledge were Judy Badnar, Joyce Bednar, David Anderson, Jack Baker, James Oliver, Paula Cooper, William Tsui, Donna Blevins, Judith Debelak, Richard Seaman, Jim Zilinski, Margaret Mathauer, Christyn Preyer, and Sally Whitmore. Those favoring the pledge were Chris Seeger, Howard Aldrich, Fitz Otis, Linda Peiblow, Susan Horth, and Roger Spaeder.

The Oct. 15 proposal by Howard Aldrich, vice president of Student Council, to limit the voting on freshman Council representatives to freshmen students only was unanimously approved. However, passage of the amendment will require a three-fourths vote at the next two meetings.

The move will enable freshmen to campaign more effectively, since they will not have to reach the entire student body.

Still indefinite is the use of a shuttle bus from Harshman Quadrangle to the main campus. Richard Seaman, chairman of the transportation committee, said that the cost for this service may be prohibitive. Also, no bus is presently available.

Roger Spaeder has been named chairman of a telephone investigating committee. The committee's purpose is to investigate the present telephone facilities on campus and to determine those areas which need additional telephones.

Wayne Bettendorf was designated to act as Student Court Public Defender at the request of students involved in disciplinary cases.

Bloodmobile Collects Quota Of 125 Pints

The Red Cross Bloodmobile collected its desired quota of 125 pints of blood, and no more, Wednesday in Memorial Hall. The blood drive was sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity, in cooperation with the Union Activities Organization and the Red Cross. Registration to donate blood was held Monday and Tuesday in the UAO office with the cooperation of Richard A. Lenhart, director of the UAO.

Sheldon Westman, Alpha Phi president, said the bank sets a quota for the amount of blood it needs. Wednesday's quota was 125 pints. If this goal is reached each semester, any University student will be eligible for blood.

Alpha Phi Omega originally brought the blood bank to the campus, said Westman, and its members do all the publicity, booking, and other preparations.

Westman also said that a contest is planned for next semester's drive with awards to be given to the fraternity, sorority, and dormitory which donates the most blood.

In Our Opinion . . .

Council, State Of Ohio Bypass Bypass

One surely would think that an 18.5 ton steel roll sliding off a semi-truck and just barely missing several University students would be of concern to Student Council and the State of Ohio.

U. S. Route 6 and its heavy truck traffic is well known to anyone living in Rodgers Quadrangle, Kohl Hall, and Founders Quadrangle. Trying to sleep with a truck shifting gears a dozen times as it passes through campus is not exactly our notion of a peaceful atmosphere for sleep or study.

Last year an irritated and sleepy mother of a freshman attending University pre-registration counted the number of trucks keeping her awake. She found that on the average, one truck rolls past Founders Quadrangle every three minutes, even in the dead of night.

The problem of truck traffic so near the University came to an ugly head Oct. 22, when the driver of a truck loaded with 37,000 pounds of steel slammed on his brakes in front of Founders Quadrangle to avoid hitting a car. The steel broke loose and rolled off.

The 18.5 ton roll (see inset picture) landed between two cross walks at the corner of Thurstin and Wooster Streets, barely missing several students standing on the corner.

The News maintains the answer to prevent a fatal catastrophe from happening is the construction of the proposed bypass around Bowling Green. The bypass, which will cost an estimated $7,235,000, has been approved by the State of Ohio. The only problem is it now has low priority among other State appropriations for highway construction. The anticipated date for beginning the project is 1966 or 1967.

Last year's Student Council, under the direction of President Robert W. Chism, investigated the problem extensively. Twelve letters were sent to various congressmen from this and the Cleveland area, urging them to press for a sooner construction date.

Not one of these gentlemen replied. Three more letters were sent to two State senators and a member of the State Senate Highway Committee. Not one of these gentlemen replied.

President Chism, in desperation, sent a letter to Governor James A. Rhodes who referred Chism's letter to the Department of Highways, which replied promptly and factually. However, the letter did not offer much hope.

After due consideration, Student Council decided, and apparently rightly so, that it was a waste of time and money to conduct a pressure campaign. Efforts were abandoned.

First of all, the News believes the State of Ohio is being negligent in an important area of student safety at Bowling Green. Secondly, the News hopes this year's Student Council will take up immediately where last year's Council stopped, and pursue the problem to a successful conclusion.

Robert Rice Returns

Dear Sir:

I was dumfounded to learn that two men were arrested for selling "The Young Socialist" on campus last September 29. This publication is sold in every dining hall here at Brandeis!

Whether or not one sympathizes with socialism is entirely irrelevant in a case such as this. In a democracy, one has no right whatever to suppress ANY opinion, no matter how distasteful he finds it, simply because he considers it untruthful.

The right to speak freely and to advance ideas, no matter how "radical" they may be, distinguishes democracy from totalitarianism. To be sure, freedom of speech is not absolute. But, in the words of Justice Brandeis himself, it should never be censored. . . . unless shown likely to produce a CLEAR AND PRESENT DANGER of a serious substantive evil that arises far above public inconvenience, annoyance, or unrest. . . ."

Now, I doubt seriously whether the sale of a socialist magazine at BGSU constitutes anything like a "clear and present danger" to the social order.

Democracy is not protected by suppressing ANY ideas. If one has any confidence in democracy, he cannot deny this.

Dear Student Council

Dear Sir:

Suggestion to Student Council: "On my honor, I will do my best, to do my duty, to God and my country, to obey the scout laws, to help other people at all times, to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight." We feel this statement should accompany the "honor pledge" on all blue books. Perhaps the Union Book Store would print this free of charge also.

Big Government: Goldwater's Error

By JOHN LOVE
News Columnist

Tuesday's presidential election is recognized by most political analysts as the most important election since 1932. And indeed it is.

It is an election in which many voters will make the grave mistake of voting on personalities or by party. But the campaign has shown clearly that these are not the issues involved.

Many voters will base their decision on foreign policy. Some will vote for President Lyndon Johnson because they think he will preserve the peace. Some will vote for Senator Barry Goldwater with the view that he will strengthen our defenses against communism. But again, this is not the main issue.

The issue which separates the two candidates the most and must be given the gravest significance is that of the role of government in our society, whether that role will be expanded or contracted.

One candidate, Mr. Johnson, recommends to continue the trend of expansion of the federal government in certain areas of our society.

The other candidate, Mr. Goldwater, has made a bold attempt with contradictory statements to deceive the American people by disguising his real stand. But behind his numerous contradictions lies a general principle of drastically limiting the power of the federal government.

In his book, "Conscience of a Conservative," he writes that Americans will someday elect a man who is pledged to restore the Republic, a man who will proclaim "I have little interest in streamlining government or in making it more efficient, for I mean to reduce its size. I do not undertake to extend freedom. My aim is not to pass laws, but to repeal them. It is not to pass new programs, but to cancel old ones that do violence to the Constitution."

This is Mr. Goldwater's stand, and it is a dangerous one. He supports his views of limiting government by saying that such action will mean more freedom for the individual. He seeks to cancel out the progress of the last 30 years while ignoring the fact that in that time an expanded federal government has increased the freedom of individuals by bettering society as a whole.

He has complete disregard for the idea which states that a society which puts the individual first and ignores the general welfare will be a society in which few will have lavish freedoms, but most will have very limited freedoms.

It is the duty of the government to insure growth, prosperity, and the welfare of society when private means cannot do so. The very growth of government has been a response to failures in the private sector of the economy.

But what is most irritating about Mr. Goldwater is that he places all his objections to government growth under the banner of a conservatism. He is not a conservative, but rather a very dangerous breed of reactionary. He is a man who has such a great reverence for the past that he wants to live it over again, a man who has such contempt for the present that he is unwilling to face realistically the problems of the future.

The defeat of the United States in the cold war will not come from the exterior. It will come, however, if we try to better our modern industrial society by using nineteenth century tools. And this is precisely what Mr. Goldwater proposes.

He says he wishes to preserve individualism, and then he proceeds to recommend steps that could cripple our society entirely. This is his biggest contradiction, his greatest error. It is well hidden behind some very glamorous language. On Tuesday, we will know if a majority of Americans have spotted it.

As I See It

Let's Try These New Traditions

By FRED ENDRES
News Associate Editor

M. Edward Morris of the English department, in a rather interesting letter to the editor Tuesday played upon the student Spirit and Traditions Board's wanting to initiate some new campus traditions.

Mr. Morris took up the call with robust enthusiasm, suggesting such new Bowling Green traditions as a "salute-to-Maimed-Classmates Day," or a Committee to Revivify Apathetic Professors, which in theory would instill a "stronger school spirit among the faculty."

Mr. Morris, however, took pen from paper then and left the rest of the brimming barred of possibilities untapped.

So, let's take up where he left off, and kick a few ideas around. First off, let's start a campus-wide "Freddie Falcon day," a day when everybody puts on a beak and trips and stumbles to class.

Secondly, let's start the tradition of never missing an 8 o'clock class. This could tie in nicely with Mr. Morris' "pep up the faculty" move. Think how surprised and pleased the professor would be to walk in a 8 a.m. and see all the bright, shiny, unshaven, baggy-eyed faces staring up at him.

Another good possibility might be a "Bowling Green Power Tower Week," when all students walk around with their heads bowed as they think about the University's electric bill.

Other random suggestions which might bear investigation are "Stamp Out White-Sox-With-a-Suit Week," a "Let's Hold It Down in the Next Room" campaign, a "Keep Winter Out of Bowling Green Week" and a "University Jerk Week," which could honor either your favorite dance or your roommate, depending upon your preference.

Whether any of these suggestions come into being as the next University tradition will be seen in the future.

At any rate, I'm sure Mr. Morris and myself would welcome any other suggestions from the student body. Address mine to the BG-News. Address his to the BG-News too. He may be writing this column next week.

Runners Seek Crown At OU

Bowling Green's erratic cross country team will get its biggest test this weekend at Ohio University in the nineteenth annual Mid-American Cross Country Championships.

The Falcons carry a 4-3 mark into the meet, but have lost at Notre Dame and Kent State in their last two outings.

The defending champions from Western Michigan appear to have the credentials to win it again.

"Western is undoubtedly the toughest team," echoes Falcon coach Mel Brodt. "It is possible that Ohio U. will give them a run because its played in Athens, but I really feel that Western just has too much," he continued.

As for the Falcon's chances Brodt did not sound overly enthusiastic in predicting them for a fourth place finish.

"We have a real hard working bunch of kids, but we just do not have the race horses that we did in years past," said Brodt.

"We will certainly be in there trying our best," he continued. But apparently the other conference members are not buying Brodt's sob story.

The Falcons have been listed as the number one dark horse possibility.

Leading the way will be co-captain Dale Cordova and backing him will be rapidly-improving Andy Benko and Stan Chapman.

The meet will begin at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

Injuries Down To Minimum

Falcons Should 'Bully' Miami

By RON WATT
News Sports Editor

Coach Doyt Perry and his undefeated flock of pulverizing Falcons should storm into Miami Field tomorrow afternoon like bully boys entering a glass menagerie. They have everything going for them.

Their injury list is down to its pre-season ebb. Only linebacker Tom O'Leary, who is recuperating from a knee injury, can be counted out of this season's Redskin war.

Tony Trent, the Falcons' 5'6 1/2" fireball halfback will be ready to play after being sidelined for a week with an ankle sprain. Steamroller Stew Williams, who has been hampered with tender and taped knees for most of the fall, is ready to go full stride at full back.

Last week's 41-0 romp over

Kent State should give the Falcons added incentive. Miami experienced much difficulty in subduing Kent, 17-14, on Oct. 10.

Last Saturday, an inspired Ohio University team upset Miami, 10-7. And if football contests can be correlated validly, Ohio's 3-3 deadlock with Kent should be another good omen for the Falcons.

The statistical comparisons also indicate that the Falcons are offensively stronger than the Redskins.

In the six games both squads have played, the Falcons have scored 191 points, while Miami has mustered 115. In Mid-American Conference play, BG has garnered 100 points in three games, while Miami has hung up 80 in four games.

Defensively, the Redskins do hold an edge over the Falcons. Miami has allowed only 24 points in four MAC games, while BG has given up 22 in three matches. Even so, the two teams are about equal in this department.

Only one Redskin weapon could make the hard-nose Falcons turn meek. And that weapon is in the likes of a 6', 170-pound, senior quarterback named Ernie Kellermann. Kellermann really needs no introduction as he has been, with-

Falcon Club Forms To Recruit Athletes

A new organization, the Falcon Club, has been established to satisfy the interests of Bowling Green alumni.

The club, which is part of a national organization for the promotion of athletics at the college level, operates under the development fund board of directors and the department of intercollegiate athletics.

Members of the club will have the benefits of special publications, priority on all ticket sales, and a special reception area at all home football and basketball games.

The membership fee will be $25 yearly, which will go to the University's athletic program. All funds of the club will be administered by the University under National Collegiate Athletics Association and Mid-American Conference rules.

out question, the MAC's top field general for the last two years.

As Falcon coach Doyt Perry puts it: "Kellermann is one of those rare players who is so outstanding that he alone can make the difference in a team."

"That boy can do so many things so well. I think he may be the best scrambling quarterback in the country."

Doyt rates tomorrow's clash as a tossup, but he quickly adds that "the difference will be made in our success in coping with Kellermann."

Falcon Gridders Will Battle Odds In Redskin Encounter

By BILL HINE
News Sports Columnist

Well football fans, that time of year has rolled around again for Bowling Green's annual loss to Miami.

Over the years, the Falcons have been strikingly inept against the Redskins. And if the past is any indication, the Falcons should be a disappointed flock of birds come about 4 p.m. tomorrow in Oxford.

Take a look at BG's record against Miami. In the 21 games played between the two schools, the Redskins have grabbed 15 wins to only four for BG and two games ended in ties. In 43 years of intercollegiate football, the Falcons have lost to Miami more than any other team they have played.

Fortunately, there is some room for consolation in previewing tomorrow's game. It's homecoming in Oxford and the Redskins have not won their Homecoming game since 1959 when they rolled over Ohio U. 24-0.

Miami Plays Tough Schedule

Moreover, Miami will have played Northwestern, O.U. and the Falcons in three consecutive weeks, an experience which would give the team nightmares.

Those of us who have been following Falcon football for any length of time are awaiting this year's impassioned plea by end coach (and Miami alum) Bill Mallory to beat the livin' daylights out of his alma mater. Every year he practically bursts a blood vessel screaming for the defeat of the Redskins — and all in vain.

We would like nothing better than to see a Falcon triumph over those Oxford Indians — after all they haven't defeated Miami since 1960. But it just does not seem to be in the books. The Falcons are apparently incapable of defeating Miami.

Miami Is Perry's Nemesis

Of Doyt Perry's nine losses in nine full seasons, five of them have been to the Redskins. There also have been two wins and two ties for a percentage of .333 under his reign. It's lucky Doyt and the Falcons haven't had to meet too many Miamis.

BILL HINE

In 1961 Miami came to Bowling Green with a 2-3 record, played the previously undefeated Falcons, and went home with a 7-6 win.

Along came 1962 and another undefeated BG squad that saw Miami eke out a 24-24 tie in one of the wildest games ever played in the MAC. Last year a Falcon team with a record of 6-0 fell to a Redskin aggregation sporting a 2-3-1 record.

Soccer Squad Ties Wooster

The improving Falcon Soccer Club held the Wooster Scots to a 2-2 tie in a double-overtime game Tuesday on the University field.

Luis Tay, Bob Hall, and Orest Wolynec paved the way for the Falcons tie. Tay scored the two goals, and Wolynec got the assists on both plays. Hall, the goalie, saved one of Wooster's penalty shots, and this turned out to be very important.

The Falcon Club had a 2-1 lead at the half, but it broke down in the second half when Wooster received two penalty shots. Although Hall blocked one, the other attempt was good, and this deadlocked the score.

Neither team could score in the two overtime periods, and, at the final whistle, the score was 2-2.

Wooster, whose record is now 3-3-1, went into the game with three consecutive victories. It had dumped Michigan, Wilmington (who beat the Falcons 4-1), and Hiram.

The Falcons, now 0-5-1, play host to Toledo at 2 p.m. tomorrow. The Rockets have a 1-1 record.

Light is the secret of life in a Linde Star

Enchantment is in every setting that holds a 'Linde' Star. With every new source of light, a new Star rises. Sometimes the Star dances on one side, sometimes it opens radiantly right in the center. No wonder the Star that lives is as fascinating to men as to women. In misty blue, plum red, honey black, shell white.

'A Penny Saved . . .'

What This Campus Needs Is A Good One-Cent Tradition

By JAMES TAFT
News Reporter

Since entering Bowling Green State University, many students have often wondered why the little copper penny was placed in the cement sidewalk directly between the University Union and Williams Hall. Students walking to class can be seen stopping and trying to pick it up, possibly illustrating the financial condition of our student body.

On Friday and Saturday nights, one can see coeds and their males embracing by the small token, suggesting it may be the popular pinning place. Also, many students have expressed the opinion that the penny was a good luck omen. It also has been said that if dates step on it while their evening together is still young, it will assure them of a pleasant evening and should lead to future dates together.

At many other campuses throughout this part of the country, there are many popular locations known to have traditional meanings to the university coeds and men. At the University of Michigan, the school seal in the marble terrace is the popular place for a man to lose his pin, or freedom, or both. At Kent State University, there is a large stone monument which every coed hopes to visit with her special guy. The University of Pittsburgh cherishes a small pond surrounded by trees, known as "Panther Hollow" to all the students.

However, back at dear old Bowling Green, it seems there is very little of the old college traditions so commonly found at the other schools. That is why the copper penny could serve as our own private tradition.

Alas, the bubble must now break. The truth must be told. The penny was placed in the cement in 1944 when the sidewalk was built. This was to keep a lasting record of the date of construction. Nothing else. Oh, well, another tradition down the drain. Is this the price we pay for progress?

Interviews Available
With U. Of Hawaii

Appointments for interviews in mid-November with a representative of the University of Hawaii are available for students interested in graduate work there, according to Dr. L. Edward Shuck, director of international student activities.

Each year the University awards 100 two-year scholarships to students from the mainland who wish to take graduate work in Asian affairs and studies, said Dr. Shuck.

William S. Weldon of the East-West Center at the University of Hawaii will be in the area in a few weeks and will talk to students here who want more information on the program.

Dr. Shuck will arrange the interview times.

Campus Movies

'Max,' Magic
On Movie Bill

The campus movies for today and tomorrow are "The Honeymoon Machine" and "Houdini."

The former, a comedy starring Steve McQueen, Brigid Bazlen, James Hutton, and Paula Prentiss, deals with a group of sailors on leave in Venice and an electronic computer called "Max" with which the Navy men plan to break the bank at the local casino. When the group gets mixed-up with spies and gambling, it is a toss-up whether they will break the bank or wind up in the brig.

The second feature, "Houdini," stars Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh. This is an authentic story of the man considered to be the world's greatest magician and includes many tests of the magic he performed during his adventurous life.

The movies, both in color, will be shown in the main auditorium. "The Honeymoon Machine" will be shown at 6 and 10 p.m. today and 8 p.m. tomorrow. "Houdini" will be shown at 8 p.m. today and 6 and 10 p.m. tomorrow.

Students will be admitted upon presentation of ID cards.
